Description

The Chimpanzees of Tanzania's Gombe National Park have been chronicled for the past 50 years. This book by Anup Shah and Fiona Rogers contains updated observations of one of the most documented groups of wild animals in the world.

Captivating photography alongside fascinating tales of the power play between families and individual primates makes this an incredible insight to our closest living relative. A must-have gift for naturalists and photographers alike.

"Stunning portrait photography and captivating character descriptions combine to give readers a unique insight into the lives and personalities of the Gombe chimpanzees - would make a wonderful gift..." Ian Redmond

Hardback, 324 pages, 34x28x3.5cm
